I was sad to learn of the death of Reggie Badeaux. Reggie was a classmate of mine at Loyola Law School, from where we both graduated in 1951. I sat next to him in several classes and was quite inspired by his scholarship and grasp of the subject material, particularly Leon Sarpy's class on Civil Procedure. I believe Reggie won the annual prize for Sarpy's Procedure. Reggie was a fine trial lawyer and we went to combat on several cases in Civil District Court. It is with great regret that I learn of his passing. My sympathy to members of his family. Charles E. McHale, Jr
