Hearing his voice I can hear him calling "Angel !" Or when the weekends came he'd come up the stairs singing, " Hey Ho it's the weekend". And if there was something hard to deal with he would say, "Oh well, you can't change the planets! We talked about other rivers such as the Ouachita river as a place to live. He said rivers are better than lakes because they flow to open waters. I met him because of our love of the water. He's near all of us----at the Miss. bridge in Greenville, Ms. Monroe city bridge. West Monroe, La. The Rigolet's Pass, the train bridge in Biloxi and now he's on the big crane in heaven looking down watching over all of us. He had so much love that's why God wouldn't let just one of us keep him to ourselves. He had to fulfill his journey. May God Bless all his loved ones. I'm just glad I got to spend time with his most cherished ones.
