I used to baby sit Charlton back in the mid-fifties when he lived in Broadmoor. He loved horror movies at the old Royal theater and camping out. He'll be missed.

I have such great memories of Charlton during our years at Murrah High School. Another great memory was the "Big Chill" weekend at Charlton's house in Pass Christian in memory of Dudley Phelps where all in attendance planted a tree in his honor and gathered together for a weekend of fun. Such wonderful classmates we have lost but we cling to those great memories we made. We will miss you, Charlton.

There are so many memories of my brother Charlton, where should I begin? We had "show no mercy" golf matches with our dad. Frances and I organized a birthday party in Vicksburg, and Drew won the three-legged race. Charlton designed a wonderful office building for me in Los Angeles...which I still own 33 years later. While many miles apart, we had a special brother bond. I will deeply miss him. Steaven Kent Jones, Jr.

Charlton epitomized C.S. Lewis's quote: "Friendship is born at that moment when one person says to another: 'What! You too? I thought I was the only one.'" Charlton could make a person feel important with his focused listening skills and subsequent questions. His humorous detailed description of an event, no matter how seemingly mundane, invariably resulted in much laughter. He was a forever friend who will be forever missed by the Murrah High School Class of '66.

Toby and I and our three grown children are so saddened. We each remember Charlton, our beloved friend and long-ago neighbor, for many different reasons, all involving his wry wit and his gift for telling a tale, usually about some of his incomparable exploits.
