Knowing Shane, you knew he had a sharp, intelligent mind and a good, quick sense of humor. He never minded sharing them. One nice Saturday, while I was working in my yard, Shane came trolling next door to find someone new to hear him. Reluctantly, I pulled the ear phones out and shut off the Walkman. But the treat was mine. For the next hour or so Shane followed me around, not offering to help, of course, but sharing and expounding upon every theory, hypothesis, and opinion that he had. When I would laugh, he'd get disappointed and I'd have to tell him that I wasn't laughing at him but that I was amused by his passion. The afternoon seemed to fly by. Passion - if another word could be added to describe him and the relationship and love of his parents toward him, it would be that. No Dad is more willing to give to his son whatever he needed than Steve is to his boys. But Sharon..no Mom was more of an advocate, apologist, critic, encourager, and flat out cheerleader for a child than she was for Shane. Smooth going was never long lasting. But the perseverance of his loving, protective parents kept redirecting their son back to the "way he should go". The impact of enduring love bore its fruit. God has a special place in his love for those that endure long and well. Shane was blessed and is.

We were deeply saddened to learn of Shane's accident and departure. Our sweet Savanna has cried a river of tears that we have all shared with her. She has always been completely captivated by Shane and continues to share many entertaining stories of their times together. Even beyond this life he is able to make us laugh. Shane was an amazing person which was shown through his willingness to be an organ donor. As a pediatric nurse, I have seen many children and adults be given a second chance at life through this priceless gift. I respect your strength in honoring his wishes during this difficult time. From the first day we met Shane, he touched us with his infinite wisdom. He had a remarkable view of the world which captured the attention of those within earshot and willing to listen. He has broadened the minds of many that will carry his brilliance forth. Shane had the best parents and brothers that a boy could ask for. His life was blessed because of the love that was given to him by all of you during his time on this earth. We will all carry him in our hearts and all of you in our thoughts and prayers. Sharon,Steve,Steven & Scott. you will stay in our prayers and thoughts. We are so sad for your loss but will alway have great memories of Shane. At Caroline's this weekend the girls told the funniest stories about babysitting for your precious boys. Shane and Caroline had a joke between them about a little boy that was bad and the babysitter put him in the closet. Caroline said Shane would laugh and keep saying, "tell me again about the little boy". Caroline,Courtney & Megan have such great stories from watching the boys baby movies, taking them to the movies (and Shane would never want to bring outside food in),going on trips with ya'll but most of all the hugs Caroline & Courtney say they would get from the boys they adored watching grow up. In Caroline's words she will always remember that precious boy, blond hair, some freckles who loved playing games and wanting to hear the story of the boy and his babysitter over & over. Caroline reminded us about wrecking the van on your driveway & destroying landscape, some lady backing into her and in Colorado with 8 children in the van & all of them talking at once and she remembers Shane saying everytime,"she crashed the car".I hope some smiles will come to you all by these stories and remember all those happy & funny times.
