Every now and then, I think of the little things that just pop into my head about my grandpa. The way he would ask how many days of school we had left and how every time he got a new injury, whether it be from the cat, or falling, he would say "Oh, your grandma hit me again" and smile. He taught me how to whistle.. I love you grandpa. You were a wonderful person. Thank you for everything.

Mr. Russell as almost everyone who knew him called him, was a good man. He opened his home to take in less fortunate people when they needed a hand. He was a master machinest and a skilled wood worker. He show me and many others the meaning of hard work. Through him I learned how to get something done, no excuses, from start to finish, and I will be forever grateful. Thank you Mr. Russell for being there for me.
