John was a dear friend of mine for many years. Two qualities stick out in my mind about him over those years. First, he was good at any endeavor he took on. He worked hard at whatever he did and became excellent at it. Secondly, he found it virtually impossible to refuse a friend in need. Behind what sometimes appeared to be a rough exterior beat a heart of gold that knew what true friendship meant. Never would he have expected or accepted anything for his help. To those of us who knew John best, we were blessed and lucky to have the rarest of all relationships--a true friend. To his family, my sincerest prayers and thoughts are with you. I know I speak for his many friends when I say, "John, thanks for the memories. We will cherish them always which will be an everlasting tribute to you."

Its always a shock to read about the death of old friends. My condolence's go out to Darlene and John's children. He was guy who always knew how he wanted to spend his day. In many ways you could say he was very lucky, I'm not sure all of us could say that about how we lived, so take time to smell the roses, even if they look like a racehorse's. Here's hoping they have trifectas were ever you end up. Sharon and Roger Butzman
