I was so shocked to read about the loss of Jack in today's paper. Jack spent many years as the number one drummer in the Changing Times Band. We were like a family in those wonderful days.I know if there is a band in heaven, Jack will surely be the drummer. Prayers go out to you, Sandy, and your family. I am so sorry for your loss.Frank Marinaro (former leader and trumpet player for the Changing Times Band) and wife, Pam.

I'm so heartbroken. My wonderful cousin and godfather taken far too soon. Sandy, Kristy, and Cal, I'm so heartbroken for you. Susan and I have had tearful conversations about this sad loss. I'm so glad I got to see Jackie at Justin's wedding a few months ago. This is such a sad day for our family. Jackie was always smiling, always jovial, and ALWAYS so damn cool.

Been quite a while since Jack and I shared friendship and great musical experiences together when we were both with the Changing Times Band, but those moments with him and the cutting up we use to do was always in the back of my mind and will even be more so since we now have lost the opportunity to re-unite and share some of those past memories together. Sorry for your lost Sandy and family ! Tony Di Vincenti (sax player with the Changing Times Band) Renee' DiVincenti
