She taught kindergarten and religion at several New Orleans area schools. She also worked at Ochsner Clinic in the Child Development Center.

She was active with the Catholic Charismatic Renewal of New Orleans where she taught "Life in the Spirit" seminars for numerous years. She was an active member of St. Peter Parish in Covington where she was the Parish Librarian and participated in various prayer groups and bible studies in the Parish. She was a Third Order Oblate of St. Benedict and also active with Magnificat Ministry to Catholic Women. She enjoyed volunteering at St. Tammany Parish Hospital.

The loves of her life were books, trees, her very devoted late husband, her children, and her grandchildren. Her love of trees lured her to move to beautiful Covington, and her love of books and family led her to author two books – Midlife Crisis and Midlife Triumph.
