Aiden misses you like crazy. He randomly sobbed tonight remembering a memory of you taking him to the dog park and letting him catch a bug to bring home to me to freak me out haha. I got to visit you yesterday. I wish I would have answered your call the day before. I will always regret not getting to talk to you for the last time. We were all so proud of who you became and I am so sad there will be no more memories for you and Aiden. He misses you. I hope you always knew that. Rest In Peace Dare. You will alwayssssss be remembered.

Darren PawPaw and Nana love you, it's hard to see us without you here. We are going over in our head the talks at your special places - the walk on your journey to your new beginning we "the three of us" knew there were certain things and people you would not be able to be around for quite a while, maybe even years they told us, we understand you've always been a family man the need to love and be loved. I I wish you would have drawn boundaries and kept them not let others twist and turn and stick your button as your Nan would say. You were doing so good at meeting your goals that you set for yourself. A good job, financially stable you had your own place, "you" bought a car. Money in the in your pocket that YOU worked hard at earning. You were so proud of yourself, myself, Nana, Brandy and your Brandee were so proud of you. Our prayer the three of us would pray to guide and conquer anything that try to block you in your new day. Your suit of armor to protect you. I wish you would have stepped back and re-evaluate your situations, we talked about what you loned for but, they were still fighting their own demons them thinking being clean 3-5-7- are 11 days we all know that wasn't being clean. You thought you could fix them but, they broke you man, robbed us of our family, took you away from us, AWAY FROM ALL of us. We are hurting, broken hearted, restless knowing you didn't take time to step back assess the situation and back off away from those around you that were trying to control you. Why didn't you come HOME we were here for YOU WE could have HELPED GUIDE You. We LOVE YOU don't forget us Darren you won our heart when you were very small and you have our heart now and forever. You were my gift from God as a son you and Brad. I loved sitting and talking about all things with you Are you full of knowledge and if you didn't know it you would Google it. You were a self-taught man on being a salesman a detailer a manager just being you like you told me all I have to offer you it's me PawPaw and I love you for yourself. We will meet again when God fix's a place for us at his table, we will join you my son. Love Paw Paw and Nana July 6, 2021 🍷🍷🍷🍷🍷🍷🍷
