My sincerest condolences to Judith, Kelli, and Kenneth. Mr Lacho went with us on every Girl Scout camping trip (staying by himself in the tiny cabin by the gate) to make sure we were all safe . He endured 1000s of cookies in his house each January and little girls invading his home as we prepared for special projects. Please know that you are all in my prayers. -Larisa Otilio Levin

I am a graduate of ExcEL in 2008. Not only did I go thru the program I would go back to speak to other graduating participants to talk to them about owning a business. Dr. Lacho even asked me to come to his UNO MBA programs to grade some of his students final presentations. It was always a pleasure helping Dr. Lacho. He was such a nice person. RIP Dr. Lacho. Thank you for everything you taught me.

I have known Dr. Lacho for my entire 14 years here at U.N.O. When I met him, he was very nice to me and so genuine. Over the years he became a person that always lit up the room with his humor when he would come to the police department to get his parking decal. Rest In Peace My Friend! Lt. Herbert Fisher, U.N.O. Ken was the greatest mentor I had in my 22 years in New Orleans. I can't begin to express my gratitude for all he did for me. Ken opened countless doors – introducing me to leaders of every business organization in the area. Ken introduced me to a circle of women leaders in marketing that ultimately produced some of the closest friends I have. Close-knit NOLA can be a challenging community in which to acclimate as an outsider. I don't know what I would have done without him taking a special interest in helping me find my place in the small business eco-system. Ken's nomination of me, for a major state-level award, resulted in a public recognition that I cherish to this day. I loved our long lunches where he updated me on all things UNO. His analysis was passionate, pointed, and often very amusing. I loved speaking to his classes each semester. And I loved receiving all those packets in the mail containing his latest publication and a note sharing its personal significance and behind the scenes experiences in producing it. Every single day, Ken exemplified the kind of dedicated community service representatives of a public university should strive to do. I can't imagine anyone who was more well known and well respected in the small business community than Ken. In a few weeks, I hit a major milestone birthday. For the last few months, I took the time to identify the 60 most influential people in my entire life with, hopefully, the goal of finding a way to communicate that to them. Ken was high on that list. Just 2 weeks ago, I was attending a business organization meeting of which Ken initially brought me into. I asked the past president if he had heard from Ken recently. He sent me the news of his passing yesterday. Please know how many people he touched in this community. So many of our area's successful entrepreneurs owe a part of that success to Ken. With greatest condolences and gratitude, Myra L. Corrello, PhD

Ken was a mentor, friend, and trusted colleague for me during the time I taught in the Management Department at UNO. He made a lasting impression on anyone that came into contact with him. Ken's love and commitment to budding entrepreneurs was the driving force behind many successful companies. He will be truly missed for his wit, his friendship, and his commitment to higher education. It was through Ken's encouragement and support that I pursued and obtained my PhD. You'll truly be missed my friend and I thank you for role you played and continue to play in my career as an a college Entrepreneurship professor.
