If his son, Billy Woessner, is any indication, the elder William Woessner must have been a very good man, indeed. David Delgado.

Billy was very kind to my father, Val DeBellevue. Dad used to be active in the Lion's Club, but as he grew older it was difficult for him to participate, particularly in the Carnival Parade, which he loved. Mr. Woessner would be sure that dad was included in the reviewing stand and could watch the parade. This made my father very happy, which in turn made the family very happy. Diane Debellevue Kramer

Mr Bill was a Covington Legend. Family man, business man, role model. Always volunteering his time. They just don't make them like that anymore. Spent my high school years growing up with the Woessner family. Spent countless nights at their house and innumerable meals. Lots of good times. What a great giving family, condolences to Miss Carol, Billy, Shawn Donna and family.
